NEW YORK, July 6.—The Tribune's

Galveston letter, dated the 20th says:

Galveston is now occupied by colored troops, constituting a provost guard for the enforcement of law and order.

General Gordon Grant left this morning for Houston, with sufficient force to occupy the city and protect the citizens in the vicinity.

The transports loaded with part of Weitzel's corps arrived several days ago, but were unable to cross.

A large fleet is now at anchor off the bar, composed of many vessels, transports, and coal barks. The Port Royal, New London,

Preston, and Columbus are anchored in the bay. The forts and batteries are now deserted, the shell, shot, and powder scattered about with wanton recklessness.

Gen. Grainger declares that they are not worth occupying at present. Fort Bankhead and Fort Magruder are the two principal earthworks, but they do not deserve to be called forts, merely being piles of sand and railroad iron, with but few guns in casemates and on the ramparts.

A letter says that true loyalty is returned to the city last evening from Albany.

President Johnson is better to-day, but not yet well enough to receive visitors. Notwithstanding his feeble condition the people persist in soliciting interviews.

Ex-Gov. Vance, of North Carolina, was released from the Old Capitol by direction of the President, on his parole, to return to North Carolina and remain subject to the orders of the proper authorities.

For some days past there have been mutinies of discontent among the soldiers at Bayley's Cross Roads, because, they thought they had not been fairly dealt with. Major Sun to-night was informed that the soldiers headed by some non-commissioned officers, had formed a plot for the capture of some headquarters, and then move into one of the forts and demand terms of the Government. Orders were immediately issued to bring the mutineers to bay, and the commanders to be prepared on the night of the 4th for any demonstration that might be made. No disturbance, however, occurred. The mutineers were discharged from the service, and then moved into one of the forts and demand terms of the Government. Orders were

COMMERCIAL.

OFFICE OF THE LOUISVILLE EVENING PRESS,

FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 7, 1865.

The market today was inanimate in all respects, with an upward tendency for cotton and flour, and various articles of comestibles, owing to the light stocks.

The improvement in prices has the tendency to check transactions as the market is somewhat unsettled and most parties anticipate a decline.

When the products of the harvest begin to come in, the market will be more settled, and prices will be more uniform. The weather to-day was as unpropitious as any that the three preceding warm days, the thermometer ranging as high as 90 in the shade. In the morning it clouded up with indications of rain for a brief spell, but that hope was soon dissipated, though the threatening aspect late in the evening.

The dispatches to the Merchants' Exchange at noon to-day quoted gold at 130 and the same rate at 4 P. M. The sugar market was firm, though not quotation. The price of sugar was unchanged in every respect, the quotation being 10 cents per hundred, with a slight advance to 10 1/2 cents. The market for coffee was unchanged, the

hundred. The market for rice was unchanged, the

wheat was unchanged, the

corn was unchanged, the

oats was unchanged, the
